Truman, MacArthur Both Set To Run

General Says Move 'Public Duty'

President Defies Revolt In Dixie

WASHINGTON, March 9—The 1948 presidential race became a wide open sweepstakes today with President Truman an announced candidate for reelection and Gen. Douglas MacArthur making a public bid for the Republican nomination.

Mr. Truman defied a Southern revolt against his civil rights crusade to announce that if nominated "he will accept and run."

Rebelious Southern Democrats immediately suggested he retire in favor of Secretary of State George C. Marshall or former Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. A few joined Republicans in predicting his defeat.

In Tokyo, Gen. MacArthur tossed his hat into the Republican presidential race three hours after the Truman announcement. MacArthur said "with due humility" he would not "shrink, because of the hazards or responsibilities involved, from accepting any public duty to which I might be called by the American people."

TWO OTHER Republican candidates, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota meanwhile are competing today for New Hampshire's eight GOP delegates in the first 1948 preferential primary.

An International News Service poll indicates Dewey should win six of the state's eight GOP delegates.

President Truman is unopposed in the Democratic primary. MacArthur's entry into the GOP race will stir excitement in Republican ranks. He is sure to win some delegates away from Dewey and Stassen in Western states.

He might even take the Illinois delegation from Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, present leader in the Republican contest. The general's first test will be against Stassen and Dewey in the April 6 Wisconsin primary.

Some MacArthur leaders were disappointed by his declaration that "I have no plans for leaving my post in Japan." Many of them hoped MacArthur would come home this Spring and actively campaign for the nomination—a step that would help his candidacy immeasurably.

THE MACARTHUR declaration may serve to revive the (Continued on Page Two)

100 Chinese Die In Blast

SHANGHAI, March 9—One hundred Chinese were reported to have been killed and another 250 injured when an ammunition dump at Tsingtao exploded today.

United States Navy sources here said the blast, which occurred half a mile from the pier where the USS Estes and the Hospital Ship Repose were berthed, leveled a city block. The blast started fires which swept a wide area.

Rescue teams from the United States Navy immediately went into action. No American casualties were reported and no American-owned buildings were damaged.

Federal Tax Collectors Said Lax, Inefficient

WASHINGTON, March 9—A congressional committee charged today that collection of the nation's taxes is marked by "extreme laxity and gross inefficiency."

The group urged that appointment of the 64 collectors of internal revenue be removed from political patronage and placed under civil service.

Condemnation of the bureau's activities was made by a House appropriations subcommittee headed by Rep. Canfield (R) N. J. and subsequently approved by the full committee. It was based in large part on an investigation made by committee members.

The subcommittee in a report to the House declared that the collectors of internal revenue are "political appointees" and Commissioner George J. Schoeneman "does not have effective control" over them.

IT ADDED that whether they actively attend to the affairs of their offices in the 48 states and territories "appears to be largely a matter of their own volition."

Committee investigators characterized 711 of the approximately 7,500 deputy collectors, who aid in the collection of taxes, as "unsatisfactory, poor or below average" in their work.

The subcommittee stated that reports from the bureau's own files "conclusively establish that extreme laxity and gross inefficiency pervade many collectors' offices" and termed "entirely inadequate" the standards of efficiency and administrative controls observed by the bureau.

Chamber Sets April 17 As 'Circus Day'

Circleville Chamber of Commerce in meetings Monday and Tuesday started the ball rolling toward the first annual "Circus Day" which will be staged at Pickaway Fairgrounds April 17 in conjunction with the Mills Brothers Circus wintering at the Fairgrounds.

A total of 3,000 tickets, 1,000 of them for children, already are in the hands of Chamber members and these will go on advance sales within a few days, officials of the organization said.

Tickets for children will sell for 35 cents while $1.20 will be charged for adults. A total of 4,000 persons can be accommodated by the circus.

AT ITS MEETING, the Chamber voted $200 as part of the $1,200 fee asked by the County Fair board for staging the circus on its grounds. The other $1,000 will be paid by the circus itself.

It is probable that the circus' own ticket wagon will be placed at Court and Main streets in the near future to aid ticket sales.

The Chamber also set March 30 as the date when it will install its new officers. Vaden Couch will then officially replace John Magill as president of the group.

Prime Minister Is Empowered To Sign 'Any Good Pact'

HELSINKI, March 9—Finnish Prime Minister M. M. Pekkala was named today as head of a seven-man delegation which will proceed to Moscow to discuss Premier Josef Stalin's demand for a pact of mutual assistance.

Pekkala will be empowered to sign "any satisfactory pact" on behalf of Finland.

This means that Finland is prepared to enter into both a military and economic agreement if the terms are regarded as satisfactory.

The delegation will include Foreign Minister Carl Enckell and his deputy, Reinhold Svento. Other members will be Minister of the Interior Yrvo Leino; A. A. Kekkonen, Agrarian Union leader; Dr. O. O. Soderhjelm of the Swedish People's Party and Onni Peltonen, chairman of the Social Democratic Party.

LEINO is a Communist. Pekkala and Svento are Folk Democrats who side with the Communists. Enckell is independent. The conferees will be accompanied by military and economic advisers and will carry a complete documentary report showing how far Finland is prepared to go.

The delegation probably will leave for Moscow by the end of this week.

None of the Finnish political parties which voted outright against negotiation is represented on the delegation.

PRAGUE, March 9—Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk predicted today that Czechoslovakia may very likely find it advisable to conclude new mutual aid pacts with some of its "cooperative neighboring countries."

He emphasized that no basic changes will be made in Czechoslovakia's foreign policy, declaring that his country would continue to work for the maintenance of world peace.

SHANGHAI, March 9—Two pilots of a China Air Transport plane reported here today that their ship was fired upon by two fighter planes bearing the red star insignia of Soviet Russia.

The plane is operated by the company headed by Gen. Chen-nault, now in Washington to testify on United States aid to China.

Officials of China Air Transport said the attack by the two fighter planes occurred 40 miles west of the Kwantung peninsula over the Gulf of Chilli.

The chief pilot of the transport plane, Lawrence Robert Huol, of Stockton, Cal., and his copilot, James C. McGovern, of Elizabeth, N. J., said the two fighter planes dove at them five times. Each time, they reported, the fighter planes released short bursts of fire.

The transport carried 32 passengers at the time of the attack. None of them was injured nor was the transport plane hit.

McGovern reported that he photographed the two fighter planes as they dove at the big ship.

Local Schools Unaffected By New Religious Ruling

While 78 other Ohio school systems with a total of 7,200 school children may be affected by Monday's U. S. supreme court ruling banning religious instruction in public schools, Circleville and Pickaway County schools will not be affected by the decision.

Both City Superintendent of Schools Frank Fischer and County Superintendent George McDowell said Tuesday their systems in the past have offered no courses of study in religion.

Fischer said that the city schools have only allowed the repeating of the Lord's Prayer in the lower grades but have held no study classes.

McDowell reported some of the county schools repeat the Lord's Prayer and some also approve Bible readings. None have held any discussion groups on the meaning of Bible readings, he said.

BOTH SCHOOL officials believed this procedure would be condoned by the new supreme court ruling.

Meanwhile, the Ohio Council of Churches, which sponsors "weekday church schools" in London Due To State Its Stand

Peace Threat Is Pondered

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., March 9—Sir Alexander Cadogan advised the four major powers in the United Nations today that he will appear at a conference today on Palestine as the mandatory power "to supply factual information."

The British diplomat, on instructions received during the night from his government in London, emphasized that his appearance at the four-power confab is not to be construed as committing Britain to any share in implementing partition or to consider prolonging the mandate.

The British attitude also made it clear that Cadogan will attend the Palestine confabs only if and when specifically invited to each separate meeting.

On Russia's side, the General Assembly's resolution to implement partition was stressed and on the U. S. side stress was laid on further efforts to conciliate the Arabs and Jews.

On the whole, however, the four powers—United States, Russia, France, China—asked the mandatory power to give information on whether peace is threatened in Palestine at present or will be after the British withdrawal.

U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin in presenting the invitation left aside any impression that Britain was being asked to join a Big Five conference, a move the British have openly opposed.

THE BRITISH diplomat immediately put the decision on whether to appear and the nature of any reply up to his government in London.

Before the Palestine confab resumes, the Security Council is to meet in closed session to consider the governorship of Trieste. The deadlock on selection of a candidate for that post has remained unbroken for more than a year, with little prospect of agreement among the powers.

A similar issue is cropping up in the trusteeship council, where an approving vote for the governing statute of the free zone of Jerusalem is expected during the day.

Selection of the governor for Jerusalem is also under discussion and the 10-nation council may settle on its candidate without further delay.

Although Soviet Russia has supported the partition plan from the beginning, she has continued to boycott the trusteeship council and thus has missed out in the drafting of the Jerusalem statute.

UNDER THE partition plan, Jerusalem and a specified radius of suburbs (including Bethlehem) became a free zone.

Another group pushing along in its task is the Palestine commission. The commission has lost hope as far as getting quick and practical support from the Security Council is concerned. Their demand for an armed force appears to be dead.

Dynamite Squad Blasts Roadway, Stalls Invasion

JERUSALEM, March 9—Haganah dynamite squads were credited today with forestalling what was believed an impending Arab invasion of the southern section of Tel Aviv.

During the early morning hours the Haganah units blew up a strategic road in the Tel Aviv boundary area to thwart invasion.

The highway was partly demolished, while a section of railroad linking Jaffa and Tel Aviv was destroyed a half hour later. The Haganah operation was carried out under heavy Arab fire.

The force of the explosions rocked the Tel Aviv area, causing many residents to believe an actual invasion had begun.

The Haganah recruiting office in Jerusalem meanwhile issued a last call to Jewish youths of both sexes to present themselves for enlistment with Jewish armed forces.

Casualties in Arab-Jewish warfare from Nov. 29 and up until last midnight were listed unofficially at 5,136, with 1,879 dead.

A Jewish Agency spokesman said meanwhile that top level Zionist officials are meeting in Tel Aviv today or tomorrow to discuss the final draft of an agreement to merge the fighting forces of Haganah and the Ir-gun Zvai Leumi organization.

FBI Checking Interstate Car Theft Case

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents Monday afternoon began working from two ends in an attempt to solve a case believed by Sheriff Charles Radcliff to be an interstate auto theft ring.

A branch office in Atlanta, Ga., has been assigned to check with the Georgia license bureau on the title issued to a John C. Clutter, presumably the buyer of a 1948 Buick stolen here Jan. 28, from the Yates Buick sales garage on South Court street.

Federal authorities entered the case to crack down on a possible violation of the Dyer Act which prohibits driving stolen cars across state boundary lines.

Sheriff Radcliff said an agent "spent some time with me" Monday going over the facts in an attempt to connect a 27-year-old suspect now in Springfield jail with the auto larceny.

ALBERT HAMMOND of St. Marys is the suspect. When arrested by Springfield police Hammond had on his possession 186 blank Georgia automobile titles and a set of keys from another car which reportedly was stolen.

The Buick identified by Georgia officials had the same registration and motor numbers as the one stolen here and fits the general description as reported in the stolen car log.

Sheriff Radcliff holds that if Hammond is guilty he is only part of an organized gang of auto thieves who are stealing cars in one state and transporting them to another for sale on illicit markets.

General Says Move 'Public Duty'

Eisenhower GOP boom. Some Eisenhower followers have continued to support him despite his withdrawal in January. MacArthur's statement that "good citizenship" justifies his acceptance of "any public duty" may prove a vehicle on which to renew the drive to nominate Eisenhower.

The Truman announcement was made through Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath who told reporters at the White House:

"The President authorized me to say that if nominated by the Democratic national convention, he will accept and run."

McGrath also reported Mr. Truman would campaign on his civil rights recommendations despite the bitter opposition to them among Southern Democrats.

The Truman announcement provoked fresh Southern opposition and new Republican claims of victory in November. Typical comment from Southern Democrats, by Sen. Johnson, (S. C.):

"I still think (Secretary of State) Marshall or (Retired Gen.) Eisenhower ought to be nominated. Either one could be elected hands down. They would start off with the South, which has 27 percent of the electoral votes."

Typical Republican comment, by Sen. Thye (Minn.):

"It's no surprise. Mr. Truman will be one of the easiest men for the Republicans to defeat."

Local Schools Unaffected By New Religious Ruling

The Rev. Donald Timmerman, executive secretary of the Franklin County Council of Churches stated:

"It is strange that the ruling would favor an atheist in a Christian country. It goes too far and will make necessary an almost endless trial of legislation to get accepted practices into law."

THE REV. F. B. Lamb, executive secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches declared:

"If the decision prohibits schools from excusing students to attend classes outside the school conducted by teachers paid by the churches, it will be disastrous to democracy in the long run."

League Ousts Hockey Players For Gambling

LANSING, Mich., March 9—Two National Hockey League players were barred from organized hockey today for gambling.

N H L President Clarence Campbell announced that Billy Taylor of the New York Rangers has been expelled for life. He said Don Gallinger of the Boston Bruins has been suspended indefinitely.

At the same time, Campbell's investigation cleared any charge of "fixing" or attempting to fix hockey games.

Campbell made the announcement following a conference with Gov. Kim Sigler. The hockey league president declared:

"I HAVE today ordered the expulsion from the league of William (Billy) Taylor for conduct prejudicial to and against the welfare of hockey in that he knowingly associated and communicated with James Tamer, a criminal and gambler of Detroit, and that he was interested with Tamer in a wager on the outcome of a league championship game played in Chicago on Feb. 18 between the Boston Bruins and the Chicago Blackhawks.

Tamer, a paroled Detroit bank robber, was arrested recently and returned to prison for parole violation.

Campbell said Gallinger's suspension was made pending "further investigation."

The ousters came as a climax to reports that hockey players had been placing bets with Tamer on games in which they played.

General Says Move 'Public Duty'

Eisenhower GOP boom. Some Eisenhower followers have continued to support him despite his withdrawal in January. MacArthur's statement that "good citizenship" justifies his acceptance of "any public duty" may prove a vehicle on which to renew the drive to nominate Eisenhower.

The Truman announcement was made through Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath who told reporters at the White House:

"The President authorized me to say that if nominated by the Democratic national convention, he will accept and run."

McGrath also reported Mr. Truman would campaign on his civil rights recommendations despite the bitter opposition to them among Southern Democrats.

The Truman announcement provoked fresh Southern opposition and new Republican claims of victory in November. Typical comment from Southern Democrats, by Sen. Johnson, (S. C.): "I still think (Secretary of State) Marshall or (Retired Gen.) Eisenhower ought to be nominated. Either one could be elected hands down. They would start off with the South, which has 27 percent of the electoral votes."

Typical Republican comment, by Sen. Thye (Minn.):

"It is no surprise. Mr. Truman will be one of the easiest men for the Republicans to defeat."

'Bloomer Girls' Indicted By Columbus Jury

COLUMBUS, March 9—Three "bloomer girls" from Indianapolis were under indictment today by the Franklin County grand jury.

Police charged the professional shoplifters were over-sized bloomers in which to hide $732 in merchandise lifted from five Columbus stores in four hours last Feb. 1.

Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett identified them as Ruby Bryant, 29; Margaret O. Taylor, 23, and Arlene Caldwell, 25. He quoted them as saying "Columbus looked easy."

Also indicted at Monday's session was the "paper bag bandit," Booker T. Herdnet, 20, of Columbus, charged with robbing three stores in 15 minutes, last Feb. 23; dropping the loot in a paper bag in each case.

In addition, the grand jury indicted Mrs. Doris Shumate, 31, of London, for embezzling $14,806 from the Virginia hotel in Columbus where she formerly was employed as assistant auditor.

Bartlett charged the money was taken between July, 1945 and October, 1947, when Mrs. Shumate left the employ of the hotel.

No earlier charges had been filed against her. The case was taken directly to the grand jury after several weeks of investigation.

Henhouse Raids Irking Farmer

Someone has been in Pearl Speakman's chicken house on Route 56, and "it ain't just the chickens."

The disgruntled farmer told Sheriff Charles Radcliff someone stole four of his best egg-layers the other evening, and on a previous raid on the coop, thieves took eight good fryers. Sheriff Radcliff opined the marauders are taking advantage of the poultry and egg market to the disadvantage of Speakman's flock.

Finns Name Pact Panel

THE FINNS suggested that the talks take place in Moscow. Russian acceptance of Moscow as the meeting place will make it possible for the Finns to take their time in considering the specific contents of the pact which the Soviet Union wishes.

It has been explained that should the Finns run into difficulty at any point in the discussions they can always plead for time to return to Helsinki for consultations with the government.

League Ousts Hockey Players For Gambling

LANSING, Mich., March 9—Two National Hockey League players were barred from organized hockey today for gambling.

N H L President Clarence Campbell announced that Billy Taylor of the New York Rangers has been expelled for life. He said Don Gallinger of the Boston Bruins has been suspended indefinitely.

At the same time, Campbell's investigation cleared any charge of "fixing" or attempting to fix hockey games.

Campbell made the announcement following a conference with Gov. Kim Sigler. The hockey league president declared:

"I HAVE today ordered the expulsion from the league of William (Billy) Taylor for conduct prejudicial to and against the welfare of hockey in that he knowingly associated and communicated with James Tamer, a criminal and gambler of Detroit, and that he was interested with Tamer in a wager on the outcome of a league championship game played in Chicago on Feb. 18 between the Boston Bruins and the Chicago Blackhawks.

"Taylor's interest in this wager was that he authorized Tamer to place for him a bet of $500 on the Chicago Blackhawks.

Tamer, a paroled Detroit bank robber, was arrested recently and returned to prison for parole violation.

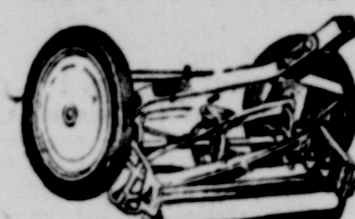

Campbell said Gallinger's suspension was made pending "further investigation."

The ousters came as a climax to reports that hockey players had been placing bets with Tamer on games in which they played.

TOO BULL-HEADED TO DIE

County's Oldest Resident Will Be 99 Next June 9

A talk with Walter Gray, now nearing the century mark and one of Pickaway County's oldest living residents, is like hearing history of the Civil War come to life.

The tall, slender, gray-eyed man who has lived through some of this country's most exciting times will be 99 on June 9. His greatest ambition is to see 100.

"I'll make it," he claims.

"I'm too bull-headed to die."

The veteran county resident is now living at the Circleville Home and Hospital. His biggest pride is that he has driven every make of car from 1913 until about three years ago and never had an accident.

"Had a little trouble getting my license th' last time" he recalls, "but I passed the test and they gave me a permit."

WHILE TURNING back memory to the Lincoln era, Gray's long, sine wave hands moved before him as though turning the pages in a living history book.

Somewhat shyly he tells of his birth near Lancaster and how his folks moved with him to the Circleville vicinity when he was four years old. Like his father, he became a farmer, "and a darn good one at that," he boasts.

As many a person recalls youthful heroes, Gray's memory takes him back when he likened himself riding with John Brown's Raiders, or being a corporal with General Pickett at Gettysburg.

He tells of having seen Generals Lee and Grant and how he heard "Old Abe" speak at Lancaster.

"I was too young for the war, but I watched lots of other fellows go off to fight," Gray recalls. He told of the excitement in Circleville when battle reports came in and how the Ohio country seethed with the news of Lincoln's assassination.

OSU Medical Contracts Out

COLUMBUS, March 9—Contracts totaling $7,494,498 for the basic construction of a new 11-story medical-dental health center on the Ohio State university campus were recommended to the state government today by the university board of trustees.

The board submitted its recommendations to Public Works Director George B. Sowers and the state board of control. The recommendations must be approved by both before the contracts actually can be granted.

The plans call for a 600-bed teaching hospital and a three-story dental school building, to be located north of University hospital and just west of Neil Avenue. The total of the basic contracts is within the $8 million limit set by the last legislature.

Trucker Held After Rerundown

SPRINGFIELD, March 9—Truck Driver Anderson Scott, 53, was held here today after he crashed through a schoolboy's traffic signal and ran down two other children.

Six-year-old Jack Longo suffered a possible brain concussion and a fractured left leg. Joyce Ann Ricketts, 7, received a fractured left ankle.

Scott was charged with reckless driving and his wife, Cleo, 47, a passenger, was charged with being drunk and disorderly.

Grain Prices Here Hit Snag, Slowing Climb

Circleville cash grain prices may have started on another downward trend Monday, following a period of ups and downs since the commodity market folded shortly after the first of February.

On Feb. 1, before the drop, cash grain quotations given Pickaway County farmers, were $2.45 for No. 2 corn, $2.65 for No. 2 wheat and $3.91 for soybeans.

The year's low in the market was observed here on Feb. 16, when prices were quoted at $1.70 for corn, $2 for wheat and $2.72 for soybeans. This meant a drop of 75 cents for corn, 65 cents for wheat and $1.19 for soybeans.

The market gradually inched itself back to near the high offered before the fall in the early part of February until last Friday when prices were boosted to $2.17 for corn, $2.35 for wheat and $3.45 for soybeans.

However, Monday's grain quotations took a slight dip, corn being quoted at $2.13, wheat at $2.30 and soybeans at $3.37, a dip of four cents in corn prices in the last three days, five cents for wheat and an eight cent drop in soybeans.

Most observers agreed the fluctuation probably was merely a normal market action.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

Do you feel like you are tied to a drag every time you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of any red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. NEW YORK, March 9 — New York City will roll out the red carpet today for one of its boys who made good—Former Irish Premier Eamon de Valera.

The 65-year-old, Irish patriot, who arrived in New York yesterday for a month's tour of the United States, will be given the big town's official reception today—parade, brass band, speeches, and the trimmings.

City Council President Vincent Impellitteri, pinch-hitting for ailing Mayor O'Dwyer, will present the former leader of Eire with a city scroll.

"Dev"—as he is known to millions of citizens of the Irish Free State—is expected to respond with a brief address.

The tall, bespectacled De Valera, who was replaced as premier last month after 16 year tenure, has not visited the land of his birth since 1930.

QUESTION OF GERMANY

THE German problem is still in the discussion stage, and will be for some time, as is proved by the meeting now being held in London by the United States, Great Britain, France, and the Benelux group of countries.

The recent fate of Czechoslovakia has given the conference a feeling of urgency, and all the members agree on the objective to be attained for Germany: an economy strong enough and democratic enough to withstand the assaults of Russia. Great Britain and the United States agree as to the methods, but France is holding back, for obvious reasons. The Anglo-American group would like to see a strong enough central government to make economic rehabilitation possible. France, on the other hand, wants a loose, de-centralized structure, and an internationalized Ruhr. No decisions are expected from this conference, but the discussions hope to bring about a more co-operative attitude on the part of the French, who have been terrified lest Germany rise against them again—and with reason.

To the average observer of overseas affairs, it may seem that a great deal of talking is being done in these conferences, and nothing accomplished. But such is not the case. The free and uninhibited airing of opinions, prejudices, and objectives leads to mutual understanding. Understanding will in time lead to concerted accomplishment. Russia's only conversational gambit is "No." The democratic nations have lengthier conversations leading to saner ends.

THE BRUSSELS MEETING

REPRESENTATIVES of England, France and the three nations in the customs union called Benelux, namely Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, gathered in Brussels at a meeting called for the first week in March. The conclave was first suggested by English Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin. Its purpose is to unite European democracies and speed preparations for their acceptance of the Marshall Plan. The date of the meeting was advanced as a result of the seizure of Czechoslovakia.

It is encouraging to see this sign of unity from five free European nations. Italy is said to have approved the gathering. Americans wish she, too, had been able to participate actively. The Brussels meeting is the prelude to one planned for later in March in Paris by the 16 European nations that come within the Marshall Plan.

Whether these meetings form the seed of a United States of Europe, or whether they are merely another alliance in the framework of balance of power remains to be seen. Americans naturally hope they foreshadow a new day instead of harking back to the old ways which have always in the past led to more war.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

E. T. Weir, the steel manufacturer, raised the question in his deposition before a congressional committee:

"I must confess frankly that I do not know what is meant when a nation is described as being in danger of 'collapse'. Nations just don't collapse. Throughout history, nations have for various reasons been in very poor condition and they have usually recovered. If European peoples had nothing left except natural resources, their bare hands, and the spirit to work they would rebuild. That is a law of life. Obviously, the nations of Europe will recover quicker and with less hardship if they receive proper outside aid and use it wisely."

Precisely what is meant by "collapse?" Obviously, Great Britain has not collapsed. Instead, the British have embarked upon a vast experiment in socialism which they hope the United States will, in a measure, underwrite. All that such underwriting can do is to lessen the austerity of life, but the British have no intention of lessening socialism, no matter what the United States does about it.

Yet socialism is a costly experiment and certainly no nation in a state of collapse could undertake it. The British would perhaps say that they have no alternatives. Actually, they have several alternatives not the least of which is the continuance of British financial and commercial practices that built them into a great Empire.

Certainly, France, Holland, Belgium and Switzerland are not in a state of collapse. Holland, Belgium and Switzerland are doing remarkably well, and France is making a noticeable recovery. Many judges of such situations feel that France has done better than Great Britain under infinitely more difficult circumstances. For the Communists nearly had France in the aftermath of the war.

Weir spent last Summer in Europe, as did a large number of members of Congress. To most of them, the term "collapse" is both fallacious and insulting. True, all these countries are in difficulties, but if the situation is completely analyzed, so is the United States, which has to burden itself with an annual budget of approximately $40,000,000,000. The entire world is in confusion which is inevitable after a general war.

Weir makes another point in his testimony before Congress that brings the entire issue to a head:

"It should likewise be recognized that the thing of greatest importance to the Western world today is the continuing strength and stability of the United States. We have no surplus above our domestic needs in the goods requested by Europe. Steel, oil, coal, machinery, freight cars, for example, are all in short supply and are all badly needed to restore balance in our own economy. It is simply not fair for the salesmen of the proposed program to say, as they have, that it will take less than five percent of our gross product. That may be true mathematically, but the fact is that the five percent will have to come out of the places where it will hurt—and hurt badly."

The real trouble with the salesmen for the Marshall Plan is that they have so little confidence in and respect for the American people that they will not tell them the truth. They raise side issues which are readily disproved. The truth is that the Marshall Plan will not save Europe from "collapse" nor will Europe "collapse" if the Marshall Plan does not go through Congress or is sharply modified. In any event, most nations will find a way to re-establish themselves.

A Drug That Helps Various Types of Motion Sickness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT used to be thought that motion sickness was largely confined to a very few over-sensitive individuals but, with the development of new forms of high speed transportation, doctors are finding more and more people affected by this traveler's ailment.

There are various types of motion sickness, such as seasickness, air sickness, and train or car sickness. It would seem likely that all of these conditions are due to the same cause, although the exact reason for their development has not been definitely determined.

Connected with the ear are little structures known as the semi-circular canals. These structures contain fluid, and the movement of the fluid in these canals has to do with the maintenance of balance. It is thought that disturbances of these structures may be a factor in the development of motion sickness.

Many drugs have been tried for the relief of this condition. During the war, this disorder was studied extensively, and many preparations were tried on soldiers and sailors, as well as on men in the air corps. It was found by many experimenters that a drug known as scopalamine caused a greater reduction in seasickness than any other preparation tried.

Larger Doses
When larger doses of the preparation were employed, some dryness of the mouth developed, but the discomfort produced by this dryness was of little importance when compared with the severity of the seasickness.

In the air corps, scopalamine also proved successful in preventing air sickness. Reactions to the drug were slight and did not interfere in any way with the performance of the men's duties.

Quieting Effect
The exact way in which this drug acts is not fully known, but it seems to have a sedative or quieting effect on the nervous system and also prevents excessive movement of the stomach and bowel. Of course a preparation of this type should be employed only under the direction of a physician. He will decide just what preparation should be used and the dose to be administered.

Those who are contemplating air trips or a long boat voyage should consult their physicians prior to the journey concerning this form of treatment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
H. S.: What causes shingles?
Answer: Shingles or herpes zoster is an inflammation of the skin in which there are groups of blisters distributed along the course of one or more of the nerves in the skin. The cause in the greatest number of cases is probably an infection by a virus. The condition occurs most frequently during cold, damp weather, in people whose resistance has been lowered by overwork or disease.

SYNOPSIS
Pretty Kit Marshall knew that being a secretary to Tracy Field, one of America's most publicized heiresses, wasn't going to be easy, despite the encouragement offered by Miss Field's guest, newspaperman Mike Saunders, whom she met while en route to her employer's Connecticut estate. Orphaned in childhood, Kit had lived happily with her Aunt Chris in Washington until three years ago when a spiteful friend disclosed her father had once served a prison term for theft. Mike was fond of Tracy in a big-brother sort of way, and during the years he had known her she had been in and out of love several times. Attractive Kirk Griswold, guest of the estate, was unaware that he had been selected as the next candidate, Tracy's cousin, young Tony Merryman, greeted Kit affably when introduced, but his mobbish wife, Anita, barely acknowledged her presence. Not so Kirk, who was visibly impressed. Due to financial difficulties the Merrymans were Tracy's permanent guests. A week flew by, and Kit, elated over Tracy's expressed approval of her work, decided to celebrate her first free afternoon by going to New York. While waiting for the train she met Kirk Griswold, who upon learning her plans begged her to have dinner with him. Unaware of her employer's interest in this friendly, serious-minded young man, she accepted. A strange sense of happiness engulfed Kit as, later that evening, Kirk guided her toward his favorite restaurant.

CHAPTER TWELVE
KIT did not know that Kirk had been looking down at her until his voice caused her to turn her head.

"There are the lights, shining very brightly. There's no darkness here. This is the busiest corner in the world and every person walking along is a little world unto himself and every face is different. If you'd stop and ask a few of them what they wanted most, you'd probably, in the majority of cases, get two answers."

"Money . . .
"Money or health. Or both."

She smiled. "I'm blessed with the latter."

He chuckled. "I, too. The former will come in its own good time and if it never does, it doesn't matter much. I've been told that that's one of the things wrong with me. I'm not mercenary enough. If I'd stop you and ask you what you wanted most, what would you say?"

"I want a well-rounded life."

He didn't respond for a moment. Then he mused, "Funny, we both want the same thing."

Once again she stepped from the street into a dim room where the music played and voices were discreetly low.
"Shall we dance first?" Kirk asked.
Dancing with him, aware less of his nearness, she closed her eyes, conscious of a constant flow of high feelings rushing over her and a heady excitement. They swept up dangerously along these feelings, until thoughts, only of tonight and not of a practical tomorrow, formed in your head. She opened her eyes quickly and when the music ended, Kirk smiled at her and tucked her hand under his arm and led her back to the table.

She did not see Mike Saunders, who might be anywhere at any time, sitting alone at a nearby table.

Mike had been drinking a good bit. His eyes were red-rimmed, his hair shaggy than ever. He had meant to have it cut a week ago. His clothes were carelessly put on. He had meant to have his suit pressed a week ago, too. Kit and Kirk . . .

Kirk . . . He smiled grimly. What would Tracy think of that? Did she know that her new secretary and her current masculine interest were out dancing and looking—yes, looking only as two people who have just discovered each other can look. And Kirk Griswold had what it took to fascinate and excite and hold a girl.

He looked at Kirk's cleanly cut profile, at his casual, correct clothes, and a wave of melancholia seemed to hit Mike between the eyes. Nuts, he thought. It's the scotch and I need some sleep. But the feeling could not be shrugged away. Kirk made him feel ashamed of himself. So what? He's a great guy who knows where he's going. He's mapped out a decent plan to his life. Maybe I can't be that way. So what? I'm not a parasite. I do a job but how well do I do it? Only well enough to get by. I'm slipping and I know it. I can't seem to pull myself out of it. Too much effort.

You can always drink yourself into feeling that you're a great guy who is going to set the world afire some day. Some day? But when? You have to begin sometime . . .

He wished that he had not come out alone tonight. He felt low. He had the jitters. It was the same feeling he'd been having recently after waking up entirely clear-headed in the middle of the night and thinking realistically about himself. And sometimes when the thinking had been anything but complimentary he had gotten up and fixed another drink. Then he began to invent a thousand excuses as to why he had not done more with a natural flair for writing, why he continued to live in the small, badly furnished, badly ventilated, badly lighted apartment, why he did not find some nice girl to marry and settle down to serious work and serious living. He would not have admitted to anyone that the future frightened him so that he drank to forget it. True, he had a job, a place to live, countless friends and countless places to drink. But what had happened to the ambition, the driving force that had sent him up from selling newspapers to writing in them?

A sensitive little boy who had to be tough in a tough neighborhood, he had been determined to "do something" and "be somebody." A mother who had died from sheer weariness and saved pennies for his education. His father, a laborer, had been dead many years and his brothers and sisters were content with little jobs and little lives.

It is too easy to do the easiest thing . . . There are many convincing, convenient excuses for not doing the hard thing. And tomorrow is always the day you will begin—but that tomorrow never comes. . . . Looking down at the nearly empty glass, he thought, I like you too much and the trouble is I like you more and more and depend on you more and more. I don't owe anybody a cent and the world doesn't owe me anything. I'm lazy and in a rut. It's too much trouble to get my hair cut and my clothes pressed. And work, extra work, a short story magazine, it's just too much trouble. Maybe it's because I haven't anybody to work for except myself and I don't need much. If I had bills to pay, and I hate to owe money, I'd dig in. I have too many fine drinking companions but no one who means anything . . .

He had never cared seriously for any girl though he had known scores of them. But the career girl Mike emphatically rejected, and the pretty girl without ambition too frequently closed her mind after the wedding ring was on her finger. A man expected too much of one girl, he thought.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Senator Sheridan Downey of California, Congressman Sol Bloom of New York and Vice-Slav M. Molotov, Soviet foreign minister, were all born on this date, March 9.

IT HAPPENED TODAY

In 1451, March 9, Amerigo Vespucci, explorer, was born. He claimed to have visited North and South America. The continent is named for him. In 1862, this date, the Monitor and Merrimack fought their historic battle in Hampton Roads, Virginia.

Screen and radio actress and vocalist, Hattie McDaniel, born in Wichita, Kan., was the first colored girl to sing over the radio with a colored orchestra. She toured with a band, during 1924-25, then in her own act. She played in the stage production of "Show Boat" throughout the United States and began her film career in 1933, playing in many pictures, including "Gone With the Wind," in which she won an Academy Award as the best supporting actress. She now has her own daily radio show. Morton Downey, called "the nation's most important singing executive," began his working career as a candy butcher on a railroad, and sang evenings at clubs, banquets and political rallies. He had other jobs, too, such as grocery clerk and song plugger. When Downey

MODERN MANNERS

The principal rule of etiquette to observe on the street, is not to make yourself conspicuous. Do not talk and laugh loudly or do anything else that calls attention to you.

YOUR FUTURE

This is a good time to make personal appeal strong, so build your popularity. Make headway now on matters that are important to you. Your year will be tranquil, and you will show wisdom if you interest yourself in spiritual matters, cultivating a serene faith that troubles will be averted.

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

commended for the blood corpuscles—red, that is.

George Bernard Shaw has expressed delight that Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis hopes, on his current visit in England, to meet him. Outside of the ring, that is.

Shaw claims he is no boxing fan but that didn't stop him from writing a novel about a boxer. Critics said it was no knock-out.

The name of Shaw's romance of the resin was "Cashel Byron's Profession." It might have had a better chance if he had substituted "K. O." for "Cashel."

As a youngster we read "Cashel" and thought it was a pretty hot book. However, at that time we didn't know anyone about the beak-busting business than George Bernard does now,

But it can be worth a trick to your side without necessarily having to win one. In some situations, ruffing with it when the declarer can over-ruff may be of telling usefulness. It may oblige the declarer to use a really high trump, instead of a very small one, to take that particular trick. By thus consuming one of his honors, he may establish in your partner's hand some card which otherwise would have been dropped when the declarer later took out trumps.

It was painful to watch East fumble his one chance to be of some use on this deal. With his "worthless" hand, he reckoned it made no difference, so paid slight attention to what he did with his own cards.

West raked in his heart K and Q, then led the A. East mechanically discarded his club 2, and South of course ruffed the trick, employing the 7 for that purpose. Then the declarer rattled off in quick succession the spade A, K and Q, followed by the diamond K, A and Q for a club discard, the club Q, the diamond 4 ruffed by the spade 8, then the club A and K. That of course gave him an extra trick above his game.

At other tables of the same duplicate game, East made one simple move that held the contract to exactly game without any overtricks. In these cases, when the third high heart was led, the East player realized it might be from a six-card suit and South therefore would have only two hearts to start with. In that event, South would ruff, using a small trump unless East stuck in his spade 9 to force a bigger one. That is exactly what these East defenders did. The ruff with their 9 compelled South to play one of his three high trumps. So doing built up West's spade J as a trick-taker.

Navy Launches Campaign For Aircraft Carrier Force

U. S. to Get Super Carrier Of 60,000-to-80,000 Tons

Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—The Navy is starting a new high-powered campaign for the aircraft carrier. If it succeeds it will leave the sea service in control of a potent arm of aviation at a time when the Air Force is taking over more and more naval aviation functions under the unification act.

It was the flattops, used as mobile advance bases, that carried United States airplanes within striking distance of the Japs and thus drove the enemy clear back across the Pacific.

Now, on the heels of a statement by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that this country must have far-flung bases from which to attack savagely any power which opens an offensive against America, Assistant Navy Secretary Brown says his service is ready to furnish the bases in the form of carriers.

Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan disclosed that a 60,000-to-80,000-ton "super modern" carrier will be built. Such a craft would be the biggest warship in history, by at least 15,000 tons. It would mount an attack by late-model jet fighters and bombers.

Brown points out that land bases are vulnerable to "savage" attacks themselves because they are immobile, whereas the aircraft carrier task force can disperse and move rapidly.

That, says Brown, would make an atom bomb attack on the force "lucky" to hit one ship.

● LEWIS FOR DEWEY?—John L. Lewis generally is believed at the present time to be in New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's camp in the '48 presidential sweepstakes. If Dewey fails to obtain the Republican nomination, however, and it goes to Taft or some other candidate, Lewis may stay silent in next fall's campaign.

The United Mine Workers president is bitterly opposed to Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft and he is not likely to support President Truman for re-election in view of his losing court battle with the administration in the 1946-47 coal crisis.

Whether Lewis could deliver the miners' vote to Dewey remains a question. Lewis split with Franklin D. Roosevelt, but the miners continued to vote for FDR.

However, many of the miners share Lewis' resentment toward President Truman. Some political observers believe that miners, particularly in rural districts, may vote for Henry A. Wallace, dispenser of federal aid as secretary of agriculture.

● WHO'S FOR WHO?—Washington observers are speculating on whether Senator Scott W. Lucas, New Deal Democrat from Illinois, was just providing a little comic relief from the increasing tension in the political situation or whether he really meant it.

The story goes like this: Lucas suggested to the Senate that GOP presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey, governor of New York, "join us in our battle against our friends on the other side of the Capitol to keep the farm program intact."

The suggestion came as the senator discussed Dewey's recent speech before a farm group in New York.

The New Dealer proclaimed that only through the "valiant" efforts of Senate Democratic members and some Republicans sympathetic to the farm program was it saved from defeat. "The battle is about to begin again, and I am very glad to know that Governor Dewey is with us on the farm program," Lucas added. "I hope Harold Stassen finds out about it, too."

At this point, Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R), Nebraska, majority whip, wanted to know: "Is the senator for Governor Dewey or Governor Stassen?"

Amid the general laughter, Lucas replied: "I am for Senator Wherry."

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

E. T. Weir, the steel manufacturer, raised the question in his deposition before a congressional committee:

"I must confess frankly that I do not know what is meant when a nation is described as being in danger of 'collapse'. Nations just don't collapse. Throughout history, nations have for various reasons been in very poor condition and they have usually recovered. If European people had nothing left except natural resources, their bare hands, and the spirit to work they would rebuild. That is a law of life. Obviously, the nations of Europe will recover quicker and with less hardship if they receive proper outside aid and use it wisely."

Precisely what is meant by "collapse?" Obviously, Great Britain has not collapsed. Instead, the British have embarked upon a vast experiment in socialism which they hope the United States will, in a measure, underwrite. All that such underwriting can do is to lessen the austerity of life, but the British have no intention of lessening socialism, no matter what the United States does about it.

Yet socialism is a costly experiment and certainly no nation in a state of collapse could undertake it. The British would perhaps say that they have no alternatives. Actually, they have several alternatives not the least of which is the continuance of British financial and commercial practices that built them into a great Empire.

Certainly, France, Holland, Belgium and Switzerland are not in a state of collapse. Holland, Belgium and Switzerland are doing remarkably well, and France is making a noticeable recovery. Many judges of such situations feel that France has done better than Great Britain under infinitely more difficult circumstances. For the Communists nearly had France in the aftermath of the war.

Weir spent last Summer in Europe, as did a large number of members of Congress. To most of them, the term "collapse" is both fallacious and insulting. True, all these countries are in difficulties, but if the situation is completely analyzed, so is the United States, which has to burden itself with an annual budget of approximately $40,000,000,000. The entire world is in confusion which is inevitable after a general war.

Weir makes another point in his testimony before Congress that brings the entire issue to a head:

"It should likewise be recognized that the thing of greatest importance to the Western world today is the continuing strength and stability of the United States. We have no surplus above our domestic needs in the goods requested by Europe. Steel, oil, coal, machinery, freight cars, for example, are all in short supply and are all badly needed to restore balance in our own economy. It is simply not fair for the salesmen of the proposed program to say, as they have, that it will take less than five percent of our gross product. That may be true mathematically, but the fact is that the five percent will have to come out of the places where it will hurt—and hurt badly."

The real trouble with the salesmen for the Marshall Plan is that they have so little confidence in and respect for the American people that they will not tell them the truth. They raise side issues which are readily disproved. The truth is that the Marshall Plan will not save Europe from "collapse" nor will Europe "collapse" if the Marshall Plan does not go through Congress or is sharply modified. In any event, most nations will find a way to re-establish themselves.

A Drug That Helps Various Types of Motion Sickness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
IT used to be thought that motion sickness was largely confined to a very few over-sensitive individuals but, with the development of new forms of high speed transportation, doctors are finding more and more people affected by this traveler's ailment.

There are various types of motion sickness, such as seasickness, air sickness, and train or car sickness. It would seem likely that all of these conditions are due to the same cause, although the exact reason for their development has not been definitely determined.

Connected with the ear are the structures known as the semi-circular canals. These structures contain fluid, and the movement of the fluid in these canals has to do with the maintenance of balance. It is thought that disturbances of these structures may be a factor in the development of motion sickness.

Many drugs have been tried for the relief of this condition. During the war, this disorder was studied extensively, and many preparations were tried on soldiers and sailors, as well as on men in the air corps. It was found by many experimenters that a drug known as scopalamine caused a greater reduction in seasickness than any other preparation tried.

Larger Doses
When larger doses of the preparation were employed, some dryness of the mouth developed, but the discomfort produced by this dryness was of little importance when compared with the severity of the seasickness.

In the air corps, scopalamine also proved successful in preventing air sickness. Reactions to the drug were slight and did not interfere in any way with the performance of the men's duties.

Quieting Effect
The exact way in which this drug acts is not fully known, but it seems to have a sedative or quieting effect on the nervous system and also prevents excessive movement of the stomach and bowel. Of course a preparation of this type should be employed only under the direction of a physician. He will decide just what preparation should be used and the dose to be administered.

Those who are contemplating air trips or a long boat voyage should consult their physicians prior to the journey concerning this form of treatment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
H. S.: What causes shingles?
Answer: Shingles or herpes zoster is an inflammation of the skin in which there are groups of blisters distributed along the course of one or more of the nerves in the skin. The cause in the greatest number of cases is probably an infection by a virus. The condition occurs most frequently during cold, damp weather, in people whose resistance has been lowered by overwork or disease.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

Original stories by Mrs. Charles Gilmore and Mrs. E. O. Crites and an original poem by Mrs. W. W. Robinson were entertainment for the last meeting of the Monday Club.

Mrs. Stanley Peters of West Water street will be hostess to members of the Royal Neighbors Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Leist of Seyfert avenue are the parents of a daughter, born March 8 in Berger hospital.

TEN YEARS AGO
Meeker Terwilliger travelled to Columbus today to gather information about the Northwest

camp in the '48 presidential sweepstakes. If Dewey fails to obtain the Republican nomination, however, and it goes to Taft or some other candidate, Lewis may stay silent in next fall's campaign.

The United Mine Workers president is bitterly opposed to Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft and he is not likely to support President Truman for re-election in view of his losing court battle with the administration in the 1946-47 coal crisis.

Whether Lewis could deliver the miners' vote to Dewey remains a question. Lewis split with Franklin D. Roosevelt, but the miners continued to vote for FDR.

However, many of the miners share Lewis' resentment toward President Truman. Some political observers believe that miners, particularly in rural districts, may vote for Henry A. Wallace, dispenser of federal aid as secretary of agriculture.

WHO'S FOR WHOM?—Washington observers are speculating on whether Senator Scott W. Lucas, New Deal Democrat from Illinois, was just providing a little comic relief from the increasing tension in the political situation or whether he really meant it.

The story goes like this: Lucas suggested to the Senate that GOP presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey, governor of New York, "join us in our battle against our friends on the other side of the Capitol to keep the farm program intact."

The suggestion came as the senator discussed Dewey's recent speech before a farm group in New York.

The New Dealer proclaimed that only through the "valiant" efforts of Senate Democratic members and some Republicans sympathetic to the farm program was it saved from defeat.

"The battle is about to begin again, and I am very glad to know that Governor Dewey is with us on the farm program," Lucas added. "I hope Harold Stassen finds out about it, too."

At this point, Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R), Nebraska, majority whip, wanted to know: "Is the senator for Governor Dewey or Governor Stassen?"

Amid the general laughter, Lucas replied: "I am for Senator Wherry."

FOR LOVE'S SAKE ONLY

Once again she stepped from the street into a dim room where the music played and voices were discreetly low.

"Shall we dance first?" Kirk asked. Dancing with him, aware less of the faces and the music than of his nearness, she closed her eyes, conscious of a constant flow of high feelings rushing over her and a heady excitement. They swept her dangerously along, these feelings, until thoughts, only of tonight and not of a practical tomorrow, formed in your head. She opened her eyes quickly and when the music ended, Kirk smiled at her and tucked her hand under his arm and led her back to the table.

She did not see Mike Saunders, who might be anywhere at any time, sitting alone at a nearby table.

Mike had been drinking a good bit. His eyes were red-rimmed, his hair shaggy than ever. He had meant to have it cut a week ago. His clothes were carelessly put on. He had meant to have his suit pressed a week ago too. Kirk and Kirk . . . He squinted through the smoke and smiled grimly. What would Tracy think of that? Did she know that her new secretary and her current masculine interest were out dancing and looking—yes, looking only as two people who have just discovered each other can look. And Kirk Griswold had what it took to fascinate and excite and hold a girl.

He looked at Kirk's cleanly cut profile, at his casual, correct clothes, and a wave of melancholia seemed to hit Mike between the eyes. Nuts, he thought. It's the scotch and I need some sleep. But the feeling could not be shrugged away. Kirk made him feel ashamed of himself. He reached for the glass thinking, So what? He's a great guy who knows where he's going. He's mapped out a decent plan to his life. Maybe I can't be that way. So what? I'm not a parasite. I do a job but how well do I do it? Only well enough to get by. I'm slipping and I know it but I can't seem to pull myself out of it. Too much effort. You can always drink yourself into feeling that you're a great guy who is going to set the world afire some day. Some day? But when? You have to begin sometime . . .

He wished that he had not come out alone tonight. He felt low. He had the hitters. It was the same feeling he'd been having recently after waking up entirely clear-headed in the middle of the night and thinking realistically about himself. And sometimes when the thinking had been anything but complimentary he had gotten up and fixed another drink. Then he began to invent a thousand excuses as to why he had not done more with his natural flair for writing, why he continued to live in the small, badly furnished, badly ventilated, badly lighted apartment, why he did not find some nice girl to marry and settle down to serious work and serious living.

He would not have admitted to anyone that the future frightened him so that he drank to forget it. True, he had a job, a place to live, countless friends and countless places to drink. But what had happened to the ambition, the driving force that had sent him up from selling newspapers to writing in them? A sensitive little boy who had to be tough in a tough neighborhood, he had been determined to "do something" and "to be somebody." A mother who had died from sheer weariness a few years ago had encouraged him and had pressed a penny for his education. His father, a laborer, had been dead many years and his brothers and sisters were content with little jobs and little lives.

It is too easy to do the easiest thing . . . There are many convincing, convenient excuses for not doing the hard thing. And tomorrow is always the day you will begin—but that tomorrow never comes . . . Looking down at the nearly empty glass, he thought, I like you too much and the trouble is I like you more and more and depend on you more and more. I don't owe anybody a cent and the world doesn't owe me anything. I'm lazy and in a rut. It's too much trouble to get my hair cut and my clothes pressed. And work, extra work, a short story maybe, it's just too much trouble. Maybe it's because I haven't anybody to work for except myself and I don't need much. If I had a man to pay, and I hate to owe money, I'd dig in. I have too many fine drinking companions but no one who means anything . . .

He had never cared seriously for any girl though he had known scores of them. But the career girl Mike emphatically rejected and the pretty girl without ambition too frequently closed her mind after the wedding ring was on her finger. A man expected too much of one girl, he thought.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY
Senator Sheridan Downey of California, Congressman Sol Bloom of New York and Vicheslav M. Molotov, Soviet foreign minister, were all born on this date, March 9.

IT HAPPENED TODAY
In 1451, March 9, Amerigo Vespucci, explorer, was born. He claimed to have visited North and South America. The continent is named for him. In 1862, this date, the Monitor and Merrimack fought their historic battle in Hampton Roads, Virginia.

JOBS UPON A TIME
Screen and radio actress and vocalist, Hattie McDaniel, born in Wichita, Kan., was the first colored girl to sing over the radio with a colored orchestra. She toured with a band during 1924-25, then in her own act. She played in the stage production of "Show Boat" throughout the United States and began her film career in 1933, playing in many pictures, including "Gone With the Wind," in which she won an Academy Award as the best supporting actress. She now has her own daily radio show. Morton Downey, called "the nation's most important singing executive," began his working career as a candy butcher on a railroad, and sang evenings at clubs, banquets and political rallies. He had other jobs, too, such as grocery clerk and song plugger. When Downey

But it can be worth a trick to your side without necessarily having to win one. In some situations, ruffing will win when the declarer can over-ruff may be of telling usefulness. It may oblige the declarer to use a really high trump, instead of a very small one, to take that particular trick. By thus consuming one of his honors, he may establish in your partner's hand some card which otherwise would have been dropped when the declarer later took out trumps.

George Bernard Shaw has expressed delight that Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis hopes, on his current visit in England, to meet him. Outside of the ring, that is.

Shaw claims he is no boxing fan but that didn't stop him from writing a novel about a boxer. Critics said it was no knockout.

The name of Shaw's romance of the resin was "Cashel Byron's Profession." It might have had a better chance if he had substituted "K. O." for "Cashel."

As a youngster we read "Cashel" and thought it was a pretty hot book. However, at that time we didn't know anyone about the beak-busting business than George Bernard does now.

West raked in his heart K and Q, then led the A. East mechanically discarded his club 2, and South of course ruffed the trick, employing the 7 for that purpose. Then the declarer rattled off in quick succession the spade A, K and Q, followed by the diamond K, A and Q for a club discard, the club Q, the diamond 4 ruffed by the spade 8, then the club A and K. That of course gave him an extra trick above his game.

At other tables of the same duplicate game, East made one simple move that held the contract to exactly game without any overtricks. In these cases, when the third high heart was led, the East player realized it might be from a six-card suit and South therefore would have only two hearts to start with. In that event, South would ruff, using a small trump unless East stuck in his spade 9 to force a bigger one.

That is exactly what these East defenders did. The ruff with their 9 compelled South to play one of his three high trumps. So doing built up West's spade J as a trick-taker.

Navy Launches Campaign U. S. to Get Super Carrier
For Aircraft Carrier Force Of 60,000-to-80,000 Tons

Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—The Navy is starting a new high-powered campaign for the aircraft carrier. If it succeeds it will leave the sea service in control of a potent arm of aviation at a time when the Air Force is taking over more and more naval aviation functions under the unification act.

It was the flat-tops, used as mobile advance bases, that carried United States airplanes within striking distance of the Japs and thus drove the enemy clear back across the Pacific.

Now, on the heels of a statement by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that this country must have far-flung bases from which to attack savagely any power which opens an offensive against America, Assistant Navy Secretary Brown says his service is ready to furnish the bases in the form of carriers.

Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan disclosed that a 60,000-to-80,000-ton "super modern" carrier will be built. Such a craft would be the biggest warship in history, by at least 15,000 tons. It would mount an attack by late-model jet fighters and bombers.

Brown points out that land bases are vulnerable to "savage" attacks themselves because they are immobile, whereas the aircraft carrier task force can disperse and move rapidly.

That, says Brown, would make an atom bomb attack on the force "lucky" to hit one ship.

Motion Pictures Shown At Von Bora Meet

John E. Wells displayed a group of motion pictures taken recently when he and Mrs. Wells were on a motor trip through the South at the Monday evening session of Von Bora Society of Trinity Lutheran church, in the parish house.

Many of the scenes shown by Wells were highlighted by views of flowers, gardens and parks taken in Florida, Tennessee and Georgia.

He also showed the colorful tulip gardens of Holland, Mich., and explained the acres of tulips are in reality huge tulip farms. A week in the month of May is set aside in observance of the occasion when children and many of the natives appear in native costume and wooden shoes.

Wells said thousands visit Holland yearly to view the tulips in beds of solid color. Other views contrasted winter trails and early autumn season by showing snow scenes and leaves turning to hues of Autumn.

Mrs. Charles Walters lead the members in Scripture selections, a prayer and group singing. Mrs. Collis Young reviewed the topic "Beginning In Jerusalem", taken from the "Missionary Outlook."

Following the business session Mrs. Fritz Seiverts presented Jimmy Palm in a piano solo. Several piano duets were offered by Miss Anna Schleyer and Miss Barbara Buskirk.

Honest, I Didn't Know USED FATS WERE STILL BADLY NEEDED!

Lady, where have you been? Used fats are needed now more than ever, because the shortage of fats and oils today is the greatest in the world's history. Our government warns us that the supply cannot meet today's industrial needs. You can help prevent this supply from getting too low by continuing to turn in used fats.

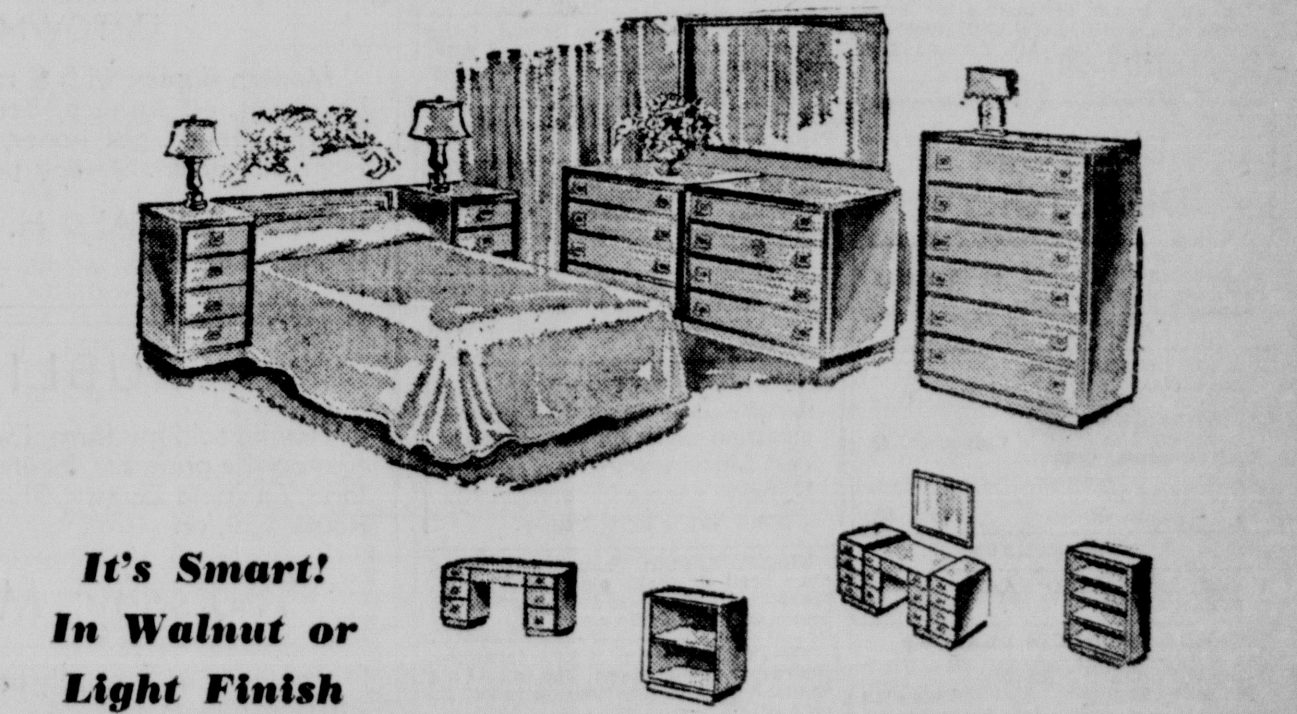

You say you re-use them for cooking? Fine! But even the drops left after that are worth salvaging. How about melting down fat trimmings, skimming gravies? Those tricks yield plenty!

And come to think of it, what other kitchen waste can you convert into good hard cash? It's a point to remember, these days of high food costs! Butchers pay for used fats. So please... don't throw your fats away. Turn 'em in!

Motion Pictures Shown At Von Bora Meet

John E. Wells displayed a group of motion pictures taken recently when he and Mrs. Wells were on a motor trip through the South at the Monday evening session of Von Bora Society of Trinity Lutheran church, in the parish house.

Many of the scenes shown by Wells were highlighted by views of flowers, gardens and parks taken in Florida, Tennessee and Georgia.

He also showed the colorful tulip gardens of Holland, Mich., and explained the acres of tulips are in reality huge tulip farms. A week in the month of May is set aside in observance of the occasion when children and many of the natives appear in native costume and wooden shoes.

Wells said thousands visit Holland yearly to view the tulips in beds of solid color. Other views contrasted winter trails and early Autumn season by showing snow scenes and leaves turning to hues of Autumn.

Mrs. Charles Walters lead the members in Scripture selections, a prayer and group singing. Mrs. Collis Young reviewed the topic "Beginning In Jerusalem," taken from the "Missionary Outlook."

Following the business session Mrs. Fritz Seiverts presented Jimmy Palm in a piano solo. Several piano duets were offered by Miss Anna Schleyer and Miss Barbara Buskirk.

At the conclusion of the program lunch was served by the March committee with Mrs. George L. Troutman, serving as chairman.

Give The Shoes Back To Horses

CANTON, March 9—Ohio now has only one recognized horse-shoe association.

John Kovacs, secretary of the recently organized Ohio Horse-shoe Pitchers Association, said he has received word from the national association that the charter of the Buckeye Horse-shoe Pitchers Association has been revoked.

Kovacs was instrumental in forming the new league which grew out of the alleged failure of the Buckeye group to promote sufficient team play.

He said the Ohio group now is only official and recognized association for the state.

Beulah Park Feud On Totes Still Raging

COLUMBUS, March 9 — The Beulah Park Jockey Club, still without 1948 racing dates for its Grove City track, carried forward today its bitter step-by-step fight against a state racing commission order that it install a totalizator.

Beulah officials wrangled long and acrimoniously yesterday at a commission rules hearing in which the focal point was a provision that mechanical tabulators be used at all tracks "in excess of three-fourths of a mile."

Spearheading the opposition to totes, Beulah Vice-President Henry Green of Shaker Heights asserted that the machines "misled" the public and "benefitted nobody but the totalizator companies."

Green described himself as an odds-calculator since 1921 "at nearly every track in the United States, Canada and Mexico."

He said he believed totalizators were originated to cut down time lags at large tracks where the betting pools were huge. He stated the mechanical devices were impractical at tracks such as Beulah where the betting pool "might not exceed a few hundred dollars."

Commission Member Preston Hinebaugh agreed that the totes are a "central system of adding machines" which record ticket sales but do not calculate odds.

Walters Home After Try-Out

Dave Walters, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walters, East Water street, recently returned to Circleville from a try-out with the New York Giants in Orlando, Fla.

Walters, who tried out for a first sack position with the Giant club, said he was sent home with 28 other youthful aspirants who were left after nearly 275 other candidates had been eliminated from the trials.

Walters now is anxiously awaiting word from the New York club as to what they thought of his play.

Give The Shoes Back To Horses

CANTON, March 9—Ohio now has only one recognized horse-shoe association.

John Kovacs, secretary of the recently organized Ohio Horse-shoe Pitchers Association, said he has received word from the national association that the charter of the Buckeye Horse-shoe Pitchers Association has been revoked.

Kovacs was instrumental in forming the new league which grew out of the alleged failure of the Buckeye group to promote sufficient team play.

He said the Ohio group now is only official and recognized association for the state.

Abe Burrows (CBS, Saturday, 7:30 p. m.) held forth in long discourse on the subject of economics.

It was typical Burrows satire: "The science of economics has fascinated man," he said in part.

GE Plant Builders Just About Ahead Of Weatherman

Concrete Pouring Progresses

Mud Slowing Local Job

Engineers and construction men erecting Circleville's new $2.5 million General Electric Co. factory are eyeing the skies with anxiety these days.

Ever since the factory was announced several weeks ago, the weatherman has had control of the situation. He has piled many a batch of foul weather upon the factory area and construction progress has been slow.

But as leaves fell off the calendar, the weatherman gradually has been relaxing his grip.

With Spring rains and thaws, he still has the upper hand.

BUT OFFICIALS of the Steinle-Wolfe Co., general contractors, said Tuesday the scales probably will balance the latter part of this week when construction work begins to focus on the "full speed ahead" point.

At the present moment, concrete workers are pouring footers which will form the foundation for the big factory which will provide employment for 500-700 local persons.

There will be 185 main footers, each taking two to three cubic yards of concrete.

Already, footers along the entire west end of the factory building have been completed. Footers along the west end of the south or "back" factory wall are gradually creeping eastward.

Biggest job, with the continual mire of mud caused by grading in the area, has been to get concrete into the footer forms being set up by carpenters.

Steinle-Wolfe is getting its concrete from the local S. C. Grant Company's ready-mix trucks. But these trucks mire down before reaching the site, have to be jerked in and out by bulldozers with caterpillar treads. And even these mire down.

HOWEVER, this problem will be remedied the latter part of the week when Steinle-Wolfe brings in a "pump-crete" — a gadget which will operate regardless of the weather.

The "pump-crete" will have a huge hopper on Ohio street into which the Grant trucks will unload their cargoes. By force, the "pump-crete" will gulp in the concrete and force it through pipes to where ever Steinle-Wolfe needs it.

T. G. Smith and Hugo Petonke, officials with Steinle-Wolfe report that after that, progress on the new GE plant will be far more rapid.

Brick for exterior walls already are arriving on the location and the Norfolk and Western Railway spur can be completed as soon as the south wall is finished. It will run along about half of the south wall. It has not been completed since the concrete-pouring job in that area has not been finished and grading along the wall is incomplete.

With the complete spur in, car-

GE UNION IS PROBABLE

City Should Have Little Worry About Labor Ills

Circleville does not have much about which to worry concerning labor troubles at its new General Electric factory.

That was the opinion given the local Kiwanis club at its Monday night dinner meeting by William J. Rogers, director of the Ohio Bureau of Industrial Relations.

"Thanks to the Taft-Hartley Labor law," Rogers declared, "things should go smoothly at your new industry."

Rogers left the impression with his listeners there was little doubt in his mind that the new GE plant would be organized by some union "before it is very old—that is, if the Circleville GE plant follows the pattern set by other General Electric plants."

HE DETAILED the workings of his own industrial relations office, the meaning of the Taft-Hartley law and talked of advancements made by Ohio in the field of industrial safety.

Rogers declared that not only would the Taft-Hartley law cut down the possibility of labor disturbances but that his department's rulings concerning safety, child and female work, and various industrial inspections would play a vital role in making the new industrial plant a valuable addition to this city.

The industrial relations expert said that after the factory construction here had been completed and prospective employees hired, it is probable that Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO) and American Federation of Labor (AFL) organizers would infiltrate into the plant and seek to establish a union.

If 30 percent of the employees want a union, the Taft-Hartley law makes a jurisdictional election mandatory. If the poll shows that 50 percent of all employees approve such-and-such a union, Rogers said, then it is mandatory that a union shop be established and all employees join the union.

Rogers pointed out that those employees were required to pay only dues insofar as allegiance to the union is concerned. They are not required to join picket lines in case of a strike.

He added that strikes still are legal under the Taft-Hartley law but that walkouts are governed by strict regulations not found in the old Wagner Act.

The Kiwanis meeting found nearly all of its club members present along with numerous members of the local Rotary Club and several guests.

Interest High In Pickaway's New Coliseum

Interest in the Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum is reaching statewide proportions.

Officials of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society report they already have received inquiries (and some visitors) from at least eight different counties concerning this county's new structure.

Heard from have been Highland, Clinton, Delaware, Fairfield, Richland, Mercer, Lucas and Athens counties.

All confess amazement at Pickaway's ability to erect "such a fine building with such a low price tag." One group admitted it had received a bid of $225,000 to construct a similar, but smaller building than Pickaway's $80,000 coliseum.

Oxygen, when mixed with acetylene, makes possible flame temperatures above 4,000 degrees.

4 County Girls Make Honor List

Four Pickaway County Freshman girls have been named to the dean's list at Ohio University and its branch at Chillicothe for their high scholastic average during their first semester at the school.

Shirley Blake of 637 South Court street, Jane Bell, of Circleville, Route 1, Mariruth Dresbach of Ashville, Route 1, and Jean Campbell of Williamsport, Route 2, were honored on the list for achieving at least a "B" average for first semester work.
